Its built around the fundamental principles of unity, cohesion and collective growth and it sets out the measure of our financial and nonfinancial ambitions. These ambitions linked in particular to the agility, usefulness and circularity of our offerings, with circularity as a historical and intrinsic principle of our business model. We listen to the weak signals to determine the strong currents, and we react with agility and determination, offering new products tailored to real needs. Growth isnt just a quest for financial success. Its also the mark of constant innovation and adaptability to the changes and new needs of our customers, who with the popularisation of teleworking are increasingly oriented towards as a service solutions with complex architectures and a strong environmental and societal concern.
